New term, new you

September often seems like a great time for a fresh start and a chance to make some plans as the end of the year approaches. Sometimes the best way to make a change is to start by understanding how we feel about ourselves. This month in the library we have a display of books all about well being, self confidence and understanding our emotions. Why do we react the way we do when we are stressed or under pressure? How can we manage our feelings when we feel angry and upset? What can we do to build more calm moments into our day? Why not pick up a book and find out!

Dates to note this month:

UN International Day of Peace
21st Sept

Hobbit Day
22nd September

Autumn Equinox - first day of Autumn
23rd September

International Rabbit Day

Book of the Month

The Lion above the Door
by Onjali Q. Rauf

Ever since I can remember, people have always stared at me and my family. Dad tells me it's because we're 'special'. But there's never anyone who looks like us, or my best friend Sangeeta, in my school history books. But this year is different. Because on our school trip to learn about the Second World War, I saw my name carved high above a church door, lying beneath a golden lion. And that changes everything.

The library is open at break, lunch and after school until 4:30pm Mon - Thurs, 4pm on Friday
